Important information

- Dinner starts at 19:00. Make sure to be up on STF Aurora Sky Station on time. Preferably you walk together with our host at 17:30. If you rather go on your own, please allow enough time for the walk to the chairlift, getting warm clothes on at the chairlift station and for the chairlift ride.
- Special diet request cannot be met unless reported in advance – the kitchen up on the mountain get all the food delivered before guests go up.
- A well composed drink package will be offered to the dinner to an extra cost.
- You will spend most of the evening outdoors – walking to the chairlift, in the chairlift and while aurora hunting at STF Aurora Sky Station. You might experience the coldest weather in your life, but that's not a problem as long as you dress accordingly.
- At STF Aurora Sky Station there is a cosy café and a small souvenir shop where you may go inside and warm up by the fire – however, the auroras are outdoors!
- Wear your own warmest winter gear. Overalls to put on top of your own clothes as well as warm boots are available at the chair lift station. Hats and gloves are not provided; you must bring your own.
- Please note – the walk to the chairlift is slightly uphill. If you get warm, ease or take off some of your clothing but put it on before getting on the lift. For safety reasons, staff at the chairlift has the right to refuse service to those not dressed properly.
- Warm clothes, camera and money/credit card for drinks and souvenirs are the only things you need to bring. If you are not used to walk on snow and ice, slip protection for your shoes may be useful. Available in the shop at the hotel.
- The toilets at STF Aurora Sky Station and at the base of the chairlift are outhouses, dry toilets.
- Taking good pictures of the northern light requires a camera with "bulb mode", self-timer (or cable release) and manual focus option. Preferably also a tripod. You may get some photo tips from our guide or at the hotel reception.
- There are no aurora guarantees! Although Abisko is one of the best places on the planet to see the northern lights it is still a natural phenomenon and we can just hope for the sun activity to be strong and the weather clear when you are visiting us. There are no refunds when there are no auroras.
- We are in the Arctic and the cold and the winds may sometimes be extreme. When the STF Aurora Sky Station chairlift is closed on short notice for safety reasons there will be an alternative program around the hotel. The staff will inform you. There are no refunds when the chairlift is closed due to hard weather.
